CAREER OUTCOMES

Community/Assistant sport coaches work as part of a team, under supervision in a structured environment such as a sporting club or school.

They are competent in delivering basic instructional sessions for a particular sport. These can range from simple technical and tactical instruction to novice or beginner participants usually at grass roots level.

Assistant coaches facilitate the development of novice participants in order to improve fundamental motor skills and performance of the individual or team. They usually have an interest or specialise in a particular sport and can operate at a local or regional, state or territory, national and international level. There is a high demand for assistant sport coaches to help facilitate and grow sport at grass roots levels. These assistant coaches are employed by sporting clubs and associations, government agencies, government funded centres (e.g. The Australian Institute of Sport), holiday resorts and centres specialising in particular sports (e.g. Horse-riding schools), swimming centres, health clubs and community institutions.

They may perform the following tasks:

- Observe individual performances to determine the level of instruction required
- Teach basic techniques for players to acquire or improve fundamental motor skills
- Supervise practice sessions
- Assist in the delivery of basic coaching sessions under the supervision of a head coach
- Implement sports first aid procedures and apply sports first aid
- Plan and direct game strategy in consultation with club officials
